Rose-Colored History

This June, Rose Month, consider how a rose is more than just a mere flower. Roses are filled with symbolism and meanings that change depending on the color of the flower: red means love and passion, pink means gratitude and admiration, white means innocence, and yellow means friendship. These color-coded meanings, however, are relatively recent inventions. The symbolic importance of roses dates back to the ancient Greeks, Romans, and Persians.

Greeks told the myth of Chloris, goddess of the flowers, who transformed a woodland nymph into the “Queen of Flowers,” the most beautiful flower in all the world. Chloris’ husband, the West Wind, blew away the clouds so that Apollo, the god of the sun, could shine his divine light down on her. Aphrodite, the goddess of beauty, gave the flower its form. Dionysus, the god of wine, bestowed an intoxicating aroma. The three Graces gave the flower charm, joy, and splendor. It was Aphrodite who named the flower Rose, rearranging the letters of the name of her son, Eros, the god of love. The rose’s unparalleled beauty was used by Iris, the rainbow goddess, and Aurora, the goddess of the dawn, to paint the morning sky. Eros would eventually use a rose to bribe Harpocrates, the goddess of silence, to keep the many secrets of his mother, Aphrodite. In these ways, the rose became a symbol of beauty, love, and silence for Greeks and Romans.

Persian legends, too, hold the rose in high esteem. The rose has grown naturally for millennia throughout the Middle East and is associated with the creation of the world and mankind. In early June, the city of Kashan in Iran holds its centuries-old Rose Festival, an annual harvest of desert roses. The roses are distilled into fragrant rose water and pure rose oils. Roses were first carried back to Europe from these harvests. Indeed, much of our modern reverence for the rose stems from these ritual harvests in Persia.

Heroes of June

We're calling the month of June wonderful, super, and heroic. Forgive the use of superlatives, but June celebrates both Wonder Woman Day on June 3 and Superman Day on June 12.

Wonder Woman has been getting a lot of press lately thanks to a massive surge in popularity after the release of her own Hollywood movie. The comic book superheroine may have become a box office smash in 2017, but for the preceding 75 years, Wonder Woman was something more subversive.

Wonder Woman wasn't the first female superhero, but she was the first female superhero created specifically to be a feminist icon. Her creator, William Moulton Marston, was a Harvard-educated psychologist who believed that women would rule the future because men were too immersed in violence and war. In many respects, Wonder Woman embodied his hope for a new world order of feminist peace. Over her 75 years, Wonder Woman has been caught in a tug-of-war between being called a feminist icon and feminist failure. Regardless of her politics, Wonder Woman has become a worldwide cultural phenomenon worthy of her own holiday.

Superman as the hero we know today made his comic book debut on June 12, 1938. While Wonder Woman was designed as a savior, Superman was originally conceived as a villain by creators Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster. He made his first appearance in 1933 in a story in which a mad scientist finds a nobody and turns him into "the superman," a bald madman bent on destroying the world. Of course, this idea was scrapped in favor of a cape-clad alien who becomes a savior to Earth.

Wonder Woman and Superman may be some of the most beloved superheroes of all time, but a debate rages: who is more powerful? The two have battled 15 times, with Wonder Woman defeating Superman eight times and drawing him four, but who's counting?

You are invited to attend a shopping day with Shoppers Service:

Thursday, June 14th from 10 AM to 2 PM, Community Room (Arts & Minds Room) at Menorah Park.

Shoppers Service is known as "The Department Store on Wheels" and brings a variety of clothing (both regular-wear and adaptive) and footwear directly to the facility.

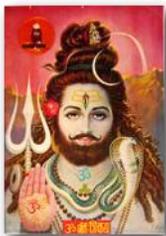

Clothing is permanently marked with name. Staff assists residents with purchases. Free alterations are available if needed.

New Staff Spotlight

Jo Speicher is our new Nurse Practitioner, who started this past January 2018, but may look familiar because she was an Optum NP before being hired by Menorah Park. She came to nursing late in life, graduating with an RN in 2008 after raising her family. She has three grown children who live away from home and three grandchildren to visit whenever possible. (Ask to see a picture- she'd be happy to oblige!) She worked in homecare with medically fragile children and taught at a local community college (TC3) for 4 years and then returned to school for a Masters in Nursing and graduated from SUNY Upstate Medical University in 2014. Jo loves to read and learn. In her free time she kayaks, cross country skis, quilts and travels. She has taken part in Medical Mission Trips to Nicaragua, El Salvador and most recently to Ghana, Africa. Always ready to treat everyone with kindness and smiles, her philosophy is unconditional positive regard.

Putting the “Why” in Yoga

The practice of yoga is now so commonplace worldwide that the United Nations declared June 21 International Yoga Day. The date is significant, for the summer solstice is used to determine the date when Shiva, the Adiyogi, or the first yogi, began sharing his deep knowledge of yoga to seven disciples. And no, Shiva did not hold the first yoga class involving bending and breathing in a Himalayan mountaintop. Shiva, seeing that these seven were now worthy of his teaching after years of mental and spiritual preparation, began to impart his yogic science, which is a balance between the body and mind, a harmony between man and nature, an ultimate realization of the purpose of human existence on the earthly plane—in other words, truly deep stuff. These seven disciples took their seven aspects of yoga to the world, and it is for this reason that there are today seven forms of yoga.

For many students, regardless of which of the seven forms they practice, yoga is merely a type of exercise. While exercise fads come and go, yoga maintains its staying power. After all, it has been practiced for 5,000 years. Spiritual fulfillment aside, yoga is an excellent fitness regimen, for it improves strength and balance, tones muscles, burns calories, and reduces stress. For those who wish to look a little deeper, yoga also offers spiritual fulfillment.

Yoga is not a religion. It has no gods. It requires no faith. Yoga is more like a philosophy coupled with physical practice and meditation. As a philosophy, the first yogis used yoga as a means to achieve immortality. They believed they could use yoga practice to control the physical molecules of their own bodies and prevent aging and death. Yoga practice could also grant access to the immortal soul, that transcendental state of bliss and harmony. In these ways, yoga is considered a means to make us humans live to our utmost potential, to become the greatest versions of ourselves, physically, mentally, spiritually, and emotionally... not a bad goal.

Tale of the Tape

June 14–16 heralds Duct Tape Days, and it is no coincidence that this celebration aligns with Father's Day on June 17. After all, duct tape is Dad's most versatile tool.

Duct tape was originally invented by Johnson & Johnson during World War II as a cloth-based waterproof tape used to seal ammunition boxes. It wasn't a man who invented it, but the mother of two Navy sailors, who believed so much in her idea she wrote a letter to President Franklin Delano Roosevelt touting her invention. The rest is history, and men have been obsessed with duct tape ever since. After all, duct tape can be used for everything from taping ducts to curing warts, removing pet hair, mending tubes of toothpaste, plugging leaky canoes, and catching insects. Of course, women use it, too. Some innovators have even gone so far as to create duct tape wallets, shoes, and dresses. Look no further for the perfect Father's Day gift.

Humans Smart, Phones Smarter

On June 29, 2007, the very first iPhone was released to the world, a debut that changed both the Apple corporation and the world. For the first time, humans held a smartphone in their hands, a device that did not just make phone calls, but browsed the Internet, sent and received email, played music, movies, and games, took pictures, had a GPS... all in a little pocket-sized box with a really cool touchscreen. It was like holding the future in the palm of your hands.

About a year after the iPhone's debut came another important innovation that made the smartphone even smarter: the so-called App Store. Applications, or apps, now allowed smartphones to become anything and everything users wanted them to be. These apps are mini-programs. Some apps are as simple as games. Others created an entirely new economy: cars can be summoned with Uber and Lyft, money transferred with Zelle, and pictures shared with Snapchat and Instagram.

Nowadays the iPhone isn't the only smartphone on the block. Following Apple's success, plenty of other tech companies quickly built their own smartphones. It seems that every man, woman, and child carries one, and in this manner smartphones have revolutionized society itself. We have access to more information now than we have had in the entirety of human history, and we can share this information in the blink of an eye. We no longer just share photos of our family vacations but of political coups and social injustice. But current research also tells a story of smartphone addiction. We have become so attached to our smartphones that we can't bear to live without them. People are sleeping with their phones within reach, checking their screens at all hours. Without downtime away from our phones, our nervous systems are in states of overload, making us both wired and tired all the time. No wonder young people today suffer anxiety when they are apart from their phones. So, have smartphones outsmarted us? Only time will tell.

Famous June Birthdays

In astrology, those born between June 1–20 are Gemini's Twins. They have two distinct and alluring sides to their personality: sociable and ready for fun, or serious and thoughtful. Sometimes they feel as if one half is missing, so they forever seek new friends. Those born between June 21–30 are Crabs of Cancer. Guided by their hearts, Crabs are deeply emotional and nurturing. They create deep bonds and comfortable homes and are always willing to welcome people into their circle.
